Councillor John Dixon

Executive Member for Health, Social Care and Well Being, Cardiff Council

John Dixon moved to Cardiff in 1984 as a student at University College Cardiff studying Microbiology with Genetics. On graduation he spent a year as a sabbatical officer at the University Union, before working at the Western Mail, and a number of publishing and design consultancies in Cardiff.

He was elected to represent Adamsdown in 1999. On re-election in 2004 he was given the Health, Social Care and Well Being portfolio, which he currently still holds, and is responsible to Cardiff Council for Adult and Children's Social Services and the Council's Public Health services.

He was appointed as the Welsh Local Government Association's Deputy Spokesperson for Social Services in 2008, and joined the board of Care Council Wales as a non-executive member in 2009. Outside of work and politics he is a keen follower of Cardiff Blues and an avid reader of popular science and mathematics books.
